As we have already stated in our issue of November 26th last, that no records have been handed down in all he genealogical tables which ever existed in Hawaii net, that shows that Pillanikapunuiaehu was the daughter of Kauhiakama, but only through Mrs. Defries's own invention. She further married the son of Kauhakama, Kauloaiwikamaikealilenaenanulaehu tated that this Pillanikapunulaehu ame-Kauhiakama never had a son by that name. Her imagination then carries her on to say that this Kau-loaiwikamaikeahienaenanulaehu then narries Killoulaninulamamao (a made up daughter of Kiwalao's), with his half sister Kalanikaulokikilo Kalaniakua. Why is it that this most im-portant incident was not known to Keopuolani, Kiwalao's known daughter and his only child, and all the chiefs of her time? And neither was it known by Kaulkeouli, Kamehameha reign. Such a person was unknown to all the noted genealogists at Auwae David Malo, S. M. Kamakau, Unauna Abraham Fornander and Kaunahi, likewise it was not amongst the late King Kalakaua's collections. It is also very strange coincidence, and which shows out the plain truth, not only of the falsity but of the utter ignorance which makes up this contrived genealogy of Mrs. Defries and her unknown satelittes. We return to Kauhiakama and trace that line direct from him to Kiwalao, and we find that Kiwalao is of the sixth generation. Then this same genealogy goes on further and says that Kiwakao's supposed daugh ter Kilioulaninulamamao then goes way back and marries her great, great, great, great grandfather's made up son (oh, horror!) a second Methusaleh it seems, which no historical events prove. By this marriage she elaims, a son was born, and it was named Kapakahili. Mrs. Defries claims egain that Kapakahili first took unto himself a wife, the high chiefess Kapulikoliko, and by her they had two daughters, Lilinoe and Kiliou the second, the latter being the grandmother of Mrs. Defries herself. We have Kapulikoliko's genealogy in our posses-sion, and several historical events sion, and several historical events and others, at the Encore Saloon, which took place during her lifetime, northwest corner Nuuano and Hotel but it is not on record that she ever bore a child. She had two husbands, the first was Ulumahelhei, they had no issue. He died at Hamakua, Hawai, trial jurors who sat on the Bishop Her second husband was Kealiiwaha-lau, and she lived with him until her Balding, because he lives at Hilo; Mr. death. No issue was born to them also. Kapulikoliko's eath took place at Kat- ment on Maul, and Mr. Copeland, be-(brother of Queen Kaahumanu) when he was resident Governor of that sland, and there are some people still living who knew her until the time of her death. Now, we do not dispute that Kilion was not Mrs. Defries' grand-mother, but we do contradict this most was her grandmother's mother, Again, worth succumbed to the ravages of Mrs. Defries great imaginative powers Bright's disease and accompanying are bringing us closer down to our complications at Ingleside, on Vineown times. SALE OF HANDKERCHIEFS

SPECIAL VALUES OFFERED.

Last week in our general advertisement we spoke of some handkerchiefs just received from the manufacturers,-direct from Switzerland; the excellence of these goods and the exceedingly low prices have caused a gre t demand for them. We are selling these handkerchiefs at a great bar, ain-those in greatest demand are the 25c ones; we have some at 5c and some a' 10c which are selling well also; then, too, we have finer grades running up as high as $5.00 each. THE 25c HANDKERCHIEFS we have made our leader and have over 150 patterns to select from, some trimmed with embroidery and some with lace. In order to sell these beautiful goods so cheap we were obliged to buy an extra large quantity, and expect the price to be su han inducement that we will supply the town with handkerchiefs for some time to come. Come and see them. We have one window fill-d with different kinds.
